

Editorial

This issue begins with an international look at the world of finance through an application to the main European stock markets presented by Gomes Augusto and Nogueira Reis. In their article, the authors focus on equity valuation methods. Then Blazquez and Bermudez introduce us to the effect that emotional intelligence has on innovation.

On the other hand, Hernani-Merino and others focus the attention of their work on the antecedents and consequences of recovery satisfaction using item response theory (IRT), from a methodological perspective and giving samples of its application. Molina, Heredia, Romani and Reygada introduces us to the importance of analyzing the power asymmetry in the organization. Finally, the journal's articles will be published, from the next issue, when they are accepted for publication with the aim of revitalizing the editorial process and speeding up the provision of articles to readers.
